

Nick Blair BSc hons BArch PG Dip RIAS studied architecture at the University of Strathclyde from 1988 to 1994 and returned as a studio tutor for an extended period spanning over ten years.

Highlights include winning the outstanding thesis memorial prize in his postgraduate year and teaching across all undergraduate and diploma years.

Living and working in Glasgow he has accrued over 25 years' experience in architectural practice and has been a director of ZM Architecture since co-founding the office in 2004.

Nick's work at ZM has allowed the development of specialist skills in working with historically significant buildings, their conservation, repair, adaptation and re-use. He has RIAS Accreditation in Conservation Architecture at Advanced Level and is a trustee of Glasgow City Heritage Trust.

Nick has maintained connection with architectural education serving as an examiner for the Architects' Professional Examination Authority in Scotland. He is a director of APEAS and has acted as Convener of the Examination Committee since 2014.

He also has strong links with the visual arts community in Glasgow and served as Chair of Glasgow Sculpture Studios from 2015 to 2017.