

Dr Katy Savage, PFHEA is the Head of the Learning Transformation Department at the University of the West of Scotland

Katy provides strategic advice and thought leadership to UWS in the areas of:

- innovative and evidence-based curriculum design,
- strategic development, implementation and support of technology-enhanced learning and use of learning spaces
- Development, coordination and delivery of holistic academic development provision, including credit-bearing programmes, routes to professional recognition, and CPD provision.

Katy's key scholarship interests lie in the use of staff peer networks to support academic development, leadership in learning and teaching, course and class design, and assessment and feedback.